The International Exhibition of Sound and Interactive Art IN-SONORA returns to Madrid from October 5 to 18 to resume the celebration of its 11th edition

The celebration of the 11th edition was scheduled from March 9 to 22, 2020, but the advance of the covid -19 meant the cancellation of the event when it had barely reached its equator. The organization of the exhibition has updated the program so that IN-SONORA can resume it in October of 2020 with a strong national character.

Thus, from October 5 to 18, IN-SONORA 11 will bring together renowned figures from the panorama of experimental music and sound art in Spain, such as Xoán-Xil López, Eli Gras or the Bromo group, made up of Paloma Peñarrubia and Azael Ferrer.

The international presence that has always characterized the meeting will also be maintained, thanks to the broadcasting of events via streaming. Therefore, foreign creations that were previously planned for 2020's program and will not be seen in this edition, due to the current mobility restrictions deriving from the covid-19 crisis, will be brought to Madrid in 2021.

PROGRAM

In the IN-SONORA 11 program there will be plenty of experimental music concerts, sound and audiovisual installations, performances and immersive listening experiences. Also, both the resident artist program and the workshops scheduled for last March will be maintained. The event has another edition with a program which is difficult to label, where the proposals share our interest in experimental sound creation, as well as interaction with the visiting public. We stay true to the most independent spaces, such as the Sala El Águila, Medialab-Prado, Aspa Contemporary, Réplika Teatro and Casa Banchel - all of them will host the IN-SONORA 11 program this fall.

The IN-SONORA Festival aims to continue being one of the most important events in the independent cultural landscape of the city of Madrid. With this, we keep our commitment to accommodate the disciplinary, aesthetic, geographical and generational diversity of experimentation in the sound and interactive arts in the community that integrates them, offering spaces for collaboration and collective learning, such as workshops and meetings, and encouraging artistic production directly with a residency program.

This year IN-SONORA has the support of the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sports, the Community of Madrid, Medialab-Prado, the Austrian Forum and the AC / E PICE Program of Spanish Cultural Action, although some of the supports will be enjoyed in 2021.
